

Some Deer Resistant Evergreen Shrubs for Sun

These plants are usually deer resistant (NOT DEER PROOF!). Unfortunately, the only guarantee is that deer will eat anything (even stuff on this list) if they are hungry enough. Often when the plants are right out of the nursery, they are tender and supple and deer are more likely to eat them. We strongly recommend using deer repellent or deer netting until the plant becomes more established. As the plants get older they produce more lignins and tannins and seem to become less tolerable to the deer, they become more deer tolerant.
